Pézenas, an architectural gem, the essentials

A town of trade and fairs in the Middle Ages; the seat of the Governors of Languedoc in the 16th and 17th centuries; Pézenas retains a rich heritage. There are large merchants houses from the medieval period and private mansions from the 17th and 18th centuries that blend in with fine religious buildings, such as 17th century chapels and the 18th century collegiate church.

Protected by his patron, the Prince de Conti, the French playwright Molière stayed in Pézenas on several occasions where he was able to observe Pézenas society from his famous wooden armchair, at barber Gély's.

The Grand history of Pézenas' little theatre

A former 17th century chapel that was converted into a theatre in 1804, this Italian style theatre has undergone several decorative transformations. This emblematic building closed down in 1948 and then laid dormant until its superb restoration and reopening in 2012. Come and discover the theatre during a guided tour (subject to availability / reservation required).

Pézenas, in the footsteps of Molière

Let's discover the places where the famous French playwright stayed and performed during his visits to Pézenas from 1650 to 1656, and the people he met there. Also we will discover how the town has kept his memory alive for so long. The tour visits the Hôtel d'Alfonse and the De Vulliod St Germain museum (subject to an extra charge and subject to availability).

The heyday of La Grange des Prés.

The residence of Henry 1st de Montmorency, Governor of Languedoc, and then of the Prince de Conti, Molière's patron, the estate is one of Pézenas' historical highlights. Nicknamed the 'Little Versailles' of Languedoc, 'La Grange des Prés' encompasses a magnificent park, and a 19th century castle and chapel.

Come and discover its rich history in a remarkable setting (subject to an extra charge and subject to availability).
